An Evening Echo.

So behave that the odor of your actions may enhance the general sweetness of the atmosphere.—THOREAU.

Yes, What Protection?

The Irish World wants to know what protection American citizens can expect from the American government under the Wilson regime. That publication says:

The story of the manner in which American citizens were treated by British officials for the crime of wishing to assist Irish women and children in distress, is one that Americans cannot read without feeling their pride of nationality offended. It proves that American citizenship is held in contempt by England. And why shouldn't it? We have seen the American flag grossly insulted on the high seas without the authorities at Washington resenting the insult in a proper manner. If the flag can be treated in that way with impunity, what protection can an American citizen expect from his government if he is humiliated by British officials as Messrs. Kelly and Smith were.

Are for Hughes.

"Women are the best politicians in our state, and Mr. Hughes has helped the cause of the Republican party immensely in the far-northwest states by his unequivocal stand on the suffrage question," remarked Edward Everett, a Seattle lawyer, who is now in Washington. "The women out that way are familiar with all public questions and know how to vote without advice or pointers from the men. For three years in Washington they have been trying to learn how the president really stood on the suffrage question, and finally have given up trying. They learned, and their influence and vote will be for him, not only because he favors their cause, but because there was no shifting in his declaration."

Blunder is Killing Patriotism.

Some government officials and army officers appear to be surprised that very few volunteers are coming forward to enlist in the national guard. If they were wise enough to understand the situation they would be surprised at any new men enlisting in view of the overwhelmingly successful efforts made during the last four weeks to kill off all patriotism and to create a spirit of hostility to the system which has carried men wholly unprepared and unequipped to the Mexican border. Nothing has ever been done in this country to compare with this in its destruction of patriotism, if patriism is to be measured by the willingness of men to enlist under incompetency and to be used purely for political work, subjecting the men who have already gone to the border to hardships and to losses for which no excuse can ever be found. Other men are not likely to permit themselves to be played for "suckers" when they see how those who had the patriotism to respond to the country's call have been treated. The Manufacturers Record says it has watched, with deep regret, the evidence seen everywhere of the incompetence and red-tapism, which, after a month's work, still leaves the national guard wholly unfitted for war, though in what might at any moment become a war zone. Surely the lesson of our unpreparedness must make some impression upon the government and upon the country.

Artificial Rural Credit.

Under the rural credit bill which the president signed with a flourish of two pens, the United States treasury will capitalize land banks which will advance money to farmers throughout the country at a rate of interest for which a maximum is pegged without regard to the condition of the money market, and on terms which are preferential as compared with the general terms of credit in the banking system of the country.

Presumably loans will not be made beyond the security of farm land offered by the borrower, although the history of farm mortgages throughout the country, under the control of private financial enterprise, is not reassuring on that score.

But if government capital, which is to be non-dividend earning, is properly available to finance the ambition of the farmer, the city dweller who may be a small shop-keeper, a manufacturer on a small scale, or merely a householder, with or without his garden patch to qualify in the agricultural ranks, has a right to expect the same favor and like terms of credit from the government treasury. The cheap money fallacy still taints the fiscal policy of Democracy and, in the long run, is none the less dangerous to the soundness and stability of our institutions.

Purveyor to the World.

Now loading at Montreal is the first ship for the Norwegian merchant marine built on the great lakes. It is the Nordal, of 3,000 tons burden. With the report of its sailing from Chicago comes the interesting information that it is one of thirty vessels in the course of construction in American yards for Norwegian firms.

Once again the disturbing truth forces itself forward, observes the Providence Journal. We do for others the things that we should be doing for ourselves. We build ships for foreign countries, and let our flag trail the seas.

While our arsenals are, or nearly so, we make tons on tons of munitions to supply all of the warring nations that can charter ships to carry them away.

Our army aeroplanes make third-class nations snicker, and yet we build the biggest and most modern flying machines for any country that has the money to pay for them.

We are like the woman who was always so busy helping her neighbors that she never had time to see her own house in order. We lead the world in many things—where we could lead it in many, many more, we merely follow. We have everything to put us several miles ahead of the procession, but we are content to take the dust of our rivals.

Altitudes in West Virginia.

A recent publication by the United States geological survey of the department of the interior—bulletin 632—should be of considerable interest to engineers and surveyors. It shows the elevations of more than 2,100 marked points in West Virginia as determined by spirit leveling done from 1896 to 1915, inclusive, in co-operation with the West Virginia geological survey. The value of these exact elevations as starting points for engineering projects requiring their own surveys is evident. In addition the bulletin contains a list of more than a hundred local elevations derived from records and topographic maps of the United States geological survey, including altitudes of well-known summits and other useful elevations.

The highest point noted in the list of datum points is thus described in the bulletin:

"Richwood, about 13.75 miles southeast of southwest of Greenbrier road, 795 feet northwest of road to Duo, in rock; aluminum tablet, elevation—4,118 feet."

The highest point in the state thus far determined is Spruce Knob, in Pendleton county, 4,860 feet above mean sea level.

Engineers and others who have occasion to use the bench-mark elevations in West Virginia should refer to bulletin 632 or apply to the director of the survey at Washington, D. C., for the latest adjusted values, using the bench markings as identification numbers only. A copy of the bulletin may be obtained free on application to the director at Washington.

Thrift Will be Taught.

Thrift is to be taught in the schools of West Virginia this year. No text-book on the subject will be used as a part of the regular course of study, but it is to be taught in as many ways and on as many occasions as the teacher may see a way to approach it.

In his annual address to the teachers of the state, through the medium of the institute program, Superintendent M. P. Shawkey calls on them to pay particular attention to this subject. In his appeal he states the following definition of thrift and how it should be applied:

"Thrift is submission to discipline, self-imposed. Thrift is denying one's self present pleasures for future gain. Thrift is the exercise of the will, the development of moral stamina, the steadfast refusal to yield to temptation. "Money-saving is only a function; it is thrift in the most elemental sense. But the thrift I preach is thrift in all things, and this is the thrift I hope will be taught in the schools of America. For this is the thrift that will give our beloved nation the type of citizens it will need. From an economic standpoint, thrift is a national necessity. "We are a prosperous nation, but individually, we are not a prosperous people. We are poor. We have grown rapidly. We have uncovered and developed vast resources. Our people have earned plentifully, but have spent lavishly. We have wasted. Our people have neglected to lay up for a rainy day."

THE DAILY NOVELET

THE WRONG TURNING.

—You can always make a hit with a girl by telling her how you miss her.

—Prof. Simp.

Barney Dareboy's giant Crackard purred joyously as Barney drove it at a ninety-mile clip along Peck's highway towards Tubeburg.

"I'd like to see the hecker that can stop me today!" chuckled Barney as he sped into the town. But at that moment he observed an intoxicated individual ahead of him in the center of the road, so busy giving a simultaneous imitation of Beethoven and George M. Cohan, that he never even heard the on-rushing Crackard.

Just in the nick of time Barney swung aside and crashed through a stile into a meadow, and the next minute Sheriff Weegles dashed up and had him by the collar.

"Have a heart, sheriff," protested Barney. "You know darn well you wouldn't even have got my number if I hadn't turned aside to save that poor man's life. A kind deed like that—"

"I don't object to stray chickens being run down, and I don't object to nothing under a hundred miles an hour," said Sheriff Weegles grudgingly. "when a property fence instead of killing a fooler that's been a burden on the community for eight years, he's a-join' to get fined good and stiff, he is."

And he marched Barney off to the lock-up.
